MARKETS UPDATE
Stock Futures In The Hole; Perrigo Nosedives
By ALAN R. ELLIOTT, INVESTOR'S BUSINESS DAILY
Posted 09:08 AM ET

Stock futures pared some losses Tuesday as solid earnings news eased the pain of weak housing data and an uptick in price inflation.

Dow futures fell 99 points before the bell after dipping 111 points in earlier trade. S&P 500 futures were off 15.70 points and Nasdaq 100 futures lost 25.75 points, both off their earlier lows.

Housing markets received more bad news as housing starts in July fell to 604,000 from 613,000 the prior month. Results were below expectations of 608,000 starts. New building permits fell to 597,000 in July from 617,000 in June. Analysts had expected 606,000 permits for July.

Inflation data also raised a red flag. Export prices (minus agricultural goods) eked up 0.2%, above June's 0.1% rise. Import prices (minus oil) rose the same amount, following a 0.1% decrease in July.

Wai-Mart (WMT) rose 2% in pre-market trade after topping second-quarter sales and earnings expectations. The retail chain offered Q3 earnings and revenue guidance in line with estimates.

Home Depot (HD) shares climbed 3% ahead of the bell after the home improvement chain beat Q2 earnings and revenue views and boosted its fiscal 2012 earnings and revenue guidance above expectations.

Among leaders, drug maker Perrigo (PRGO) slumped 6%. The Allegan, Mich.-based company reported better-than-expected Q2 earnings, but a 14% gain in revenue fell just short of consensus forecasts. The move put the stock well below its 10-week moving average. But keep in mind, premarket moves are often erased at the start of regular trading.

In China, the Shanghai composite slipped 0.7% and Hong Kong's Hang Seng index lost 0.2%. In Japan, Tokyo's Nikkei 225 climbed 0.2%.

Markets moved abruptly lower across Europe after data showed Germany's economic growth slowing to 0.1% in the second quarter. In afternoon trade, Frankfurt's DAX was down 2.6%, London's FTSE 100 lost 1.4% and Paris' CAC-40 fell 2.2%.

Moody's Says U.S. Faces Loss of Aaa Without Budget Deal in 2013

By John Deitch - Sep 11, 2012 11:09 AM ET

A national debt clock is displayed during the Republican National Convention (RNC) in Tampa on Aug. 27, 2012.

Moody's Investors Service said it may join Standard & Poor's in downgrading the U.S.'s credit rating unless Congress reduces the percentage of debt-to-gross-domestic product during budget negotiations next year.

Sept. 11 (Bloomberg) — Peter Hayes, head of municipal bonds at BlackRock Inc., talks about the potential impact of the U.S. fiscal situation on the nation's credit rating and bond market. Hayes, speaking with Betty Liu on Bloomberg Television's "In the Loop," also discusses the teachers' strike in Chicago. (Source: Bloomberg)

The U.S. economy will probably tip into recession next year if lawmakers and President Barack Obama can't break an impasse over the federal budget and if the George W. Bush-era tax cuts expire in what's become known as the "fiscal cliff," according to a report by the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office published on Aug. 22. The rating would likely be cut to Aa1 from Aaa if an agreement isn't reached, Moody's said in a statement.

Moody's put the rating under review with a negative outlook in August 2011, when the U.S. pushed back a decision on spending and raised its so-called the debt ceiling after months of political wrangling. S&P cut its rating to AA+ that month, blaming the nation's political process. Investors ignored the reduction and Treasuries rallied, with the yield on the benchmark 10-year note since declining to record lows and the S&P downgrade drawing the ire of investors such as Warren Buffett, the biggest shareholder of Moody's, who said after the S&P decision that U.S. should be "quadruple-A."

"At some point, we might see the market demand a higher yield premium to own Treasuries, but I don't think that's the case now as this is just a shot across the bow," said Jack McIntyre, a money manager in Philadelphia at Brandywine Global Investment, which oversees $30 billion of debt. "It's hard to find a bond market that has the depth of liquidity that Treasuries do."

Rep. Steve LaTourette, a Republican from Ohio, speaks at a news conference at the House Triangle to call on Congress to work together to address a possible financial crisis in the future dubbed the "fiscal cliff." Patchy Q3 growth boosts

By David Miliken and Peter Griffiths LONDON | Thu Nov 24, 2011 9:18pm GMT

(Reuters) - The economy grew 0.5 percent third quarter of this year, official data on Wednesday, in what is likely to be the last moderately upbeat news for some time as a country veers perilously close to recession.

Growth was the best in any quarter for a year, but was drab that are unlikely to withstand the deepening euro zone deflation and ongoing government fiscal contraction.

A sharp increase in firms' inventories and government spending growth, with a rebound from disruption in the second quarter was a public holiday to mark a royal wedding and Japan's supply chains, also helping.

"The detail reveals some very interesting and worrying trends, a significant blow to short-term growth prospects," said Alan, an economic advisor to accountants Ernst & Young.

Without stock building and government spending the economy contracted in Q3 (and) there is a good chance that it will be added.

Back in the Black: Hovnanian Posts Surprise 3Q Profit as Sales Jump

Buoyed by a new home market it believes has bottomed, home builder Hovnanian Enterprises (HOV: 3.08, -0.14, -4.21%) revealed a surprise fiscal third-quarter profit on Thursday thanks to a 36% leap in sales.

Despite the unexpected return to the black, previously red-hot shares of Hovnanian dipped around 1% in recent trading.

The Red Bank, N.J.-based home builder said it earned $34.7 million, or 25 cents a share, last quarter, compared with a loss of $50.9 million, or 47 cents a share, a year earlier.

Analysts had been bracing for a loss of 13 cents a share.

On a pretax basis, Hovnanian said its loss tumbled to $1.8 million last quarter, compared with $55.6 million the year before.

Revenue climbed 36% year-over-year to $387 million, compared with the Street's view of $388 million.

Ara Hovnanian, the company's CEO, said in a statement that the market for new homes has been "resilient" in both the spring selling season and the summer months, "despite a continuing weak United States economy."

"We believe the housing market's recent overall strength and our significantly improved sales pace this year indicates that the market for new homes has bounced off the bottom and is already in a period of gradual recovery," Hovnanian said.

Hovnanian also said the dollar value of its net contracts jumped 32% to $507 million, while the number of contracts rose a more modest 18.8% to 1,541 homes. Deliveries rose 25% to 1,387 units.

The company's backlog of contracts soared 41.2% year-over-year to 2,452 homes with a sales value of $813.9 million.

While Hovnanian's shares hit a fresh intraday 52-week high of $3.36, they were recently off 0.62% to $3.19, leaving them up a hefty 119% on the year.

Summary

Why advertise with dianomi™?

1. Through our global, premium publisher network we reach over 50 million affluent consumers per month in the US, UK and Australian markets.
2. 30% of the prospects that we deliver to our advertisers are within the top 10% most affluent demographic.
3. We work on a pay for results basis only
- cost per lead, cost per click and cost per call.
4. We believe our client list and 85% client retention rate speaks for itself, as does the measure of customer satisfaction to which they testify.
5. We are dedicated to providing maximum value for all clients as the basis for long term relationships.

J.P.Morgan

“dianomi™ play a vital role in our online client acquisition program - providing valuable leads for future marketing campaigns with impressive conversion rates. We have used this service for a number of years and intend to continue as it makes up part of our regular marketing mix.”
